“ As a cousin on her mother's side, I knew Maxine since before my memory (I came along in October 1938), as we frequently visited in family gatherings. She and her sister, Pauline, were mischievous children, who teased me constantly, so it was always fun. Our grandparents had a farm near Waterman, Illinois. There were many family picnics and holiday dinners. I attended her wedding with my parents. Later on, around 1990, I visited with her at Aunt Thelma's funeral. When I was about to leave, she told me "Good-bye", which startled me because I don't remember anyone doing that especially one so full of life and fun.
