“ It's been a long time since I've seen you, but I always thought about you. I have so many memories about you when we were growing up. Ones I will cherish and hold on to forever until we see each other again. I'll never forget you and the times we shared. Love you Grandma. This is not good-bye, only see you later. I Love you. Your grandson David

“ Even though Grandma was not the type of person to just come out and say that she loved you, She had her own way of showing it and I know she valued and loved all her family and we were all important to her. She will be greatly missed and the memories of her in our lives will always be remembered by us. I know she is now in alot better place than of this world. God bless!

“ I was once told that "letting go" was so hard. Then, I looked to see what "letting go" meant? I found that the two words were often mistaken. "Letting go" does not mean letting go of what we loved about someone, or the memories. While the type of bond may be changed, the bond remains. Perhaps "letting go" refers to a span in our journey where the wrenching pain that cloaked our hearts in sorrow and fear lifts. I think it is in that time that our worries can be best handled by "letting go, and letting God" cradle us in the palm of His hand.

Wednesday, March 28, 2009,

upon hearing of the passing of his "Aunt Dorothy."

My heart tears, but my mind remembers the joy she brought to me as I grew up with Ronda, Connie, Diane, Linda and Kathy.

May the peace that passeth all understanding belong to all of you.

“ Mom you will be missed dearly. You were always there for me through all of my struggles to lend a shoulder to cry on. I don't know what direction my life would have gone had it not been for you. I hope you find peace now. I hope to see you again someday. Your daughter, Connie “ *Mom- I loved you so very much and I miss you so much in my life.

You helped me to be the person that I am today. I would not be a nurse without you. Now you can move your arm and you can see the son you never got to meet and you can get to know your mom. I will see you some day. Save a place for me at the feet of Jesus.*
