“ There aren't enough words to describe my brother. He was the best person a sister, mother, neice, nephew, friend, anyone could ever want. He was caring and compassionate. Loving and true. There was never a time he would back down from anything that stood in his way.

He loved life, his family, and his friends. He would make time to help us, or teach us something new. This was especially true for certain subjects. There were subjects that really got him fired up and he could go on explaining them until you understood more than you asked for. That was especially helpful when I was in school. It didn't matter where he was, he had a way of drilling things into my head, even on the phone or written in a letter. I'll never forget the thunderstorm when we lost power and he helped me to memorize the signing of the Declaration of Independence (by the light of an oil lamp). We were up most of the night. It is something that I will never forget. Those times like every time were greatly charished and will forever be.

There is something more I want to share and that is; that no one will ever compare or take his place in all our hearts. He is truely missed. We will forever be grateful for the times, good and bad, that we shared with him.

Love you bubby-little sis

“ Doug was a great father-in-law. he was more like a father to me than my own father was. Me and his grandson will miss him very much. He taught me so much about life, and what all there really is to live for. I am glad though that now he is at peace and not going through all the pain he was enduring. May god be with him.
